
STAFF WELLBEING

AN ONGOING PROJECT

Local care home group concludes first stage of Staff Wellbeing Project

Spellman Care is thrilled to announce the successful completion of Stage 1 of its comprehensive Staff Wellbeing Project, a significant initiative designed to prioritize the well-being and professional development of its valued team members.

“We’re thrilled to reach this milestone in our wellbeing project at Spellman Care. This isn’t just about offering initiatives, it’s about embedding a culture of well-being for our staff that becomes the very foundation of who we are. A foundation where staff feel valued, supported, and empowered to thrive, both personally and professionally” says Philippa Young, Group Operations Manager at Spellman Care.

Stage 1 builds on Spellman Care’s culture of open communication, recognition, and community, with highlights including the groups ‘Wellbeing Wednesdays’, ‘Open Breakfasts’ and Staff Newsletters.

Spellman Care remains committed to continuously adding new resources, news, and content to the Staff Wellbeing Project. Stage 2 promises exciting new developments to further enrich the lives of its dedicated staff.

...social media platforms, and the homes innovative “Tiny Tablet” – a large, accessible mobile tablet designed for care homes.

Previously known as Branwell, Charlotte, Emily, and Heathcliff, the communities have been renamed Devonshire, Harewood, and Cavendish, following the theme ‘Country Estates’.

“We’re thrilled to unveil the new community names at Steeton

Court,” said Steven Spellman, Director of Spellman Care. “Resident engagement is incredibly important to us, and we’re delighted they played such an active role in choosing names that resonate with them. The new names perfectly complement the recent refurbishment, creating a fresh and welcoming atmosphere for all.”

The refurbishment project at Steeton Court encompasses a variety of upgrades, including modernized lounges, hallways, and a new state of the art salon. The focus of the project is to create an even more comfortable and enriching environment that caters to the individual needs and preferences of residents.

The next stage of the project will see the former Charlotte (now Cavendish) dining room expanded to create a larger space for residents to socialize over their meals.

GHYLL ROYD CARE HOME

Ghyll Royd Care Home shines bright with new Solar Panels

Ghyll Royd Care Home is proud to announce the successful installation and commissioning of their brand new solar panels. The project, completed last Friday, marks a significant step forward in the care home's commitment to sustainability and environmental responsibility, as outlined in their ESG plan and policy.

These state-of-the-art solar panels boast an impressive capacity to generate a staggering 46,054 kWh of clean, renewable energy per year. This translates to a remarkable reduction of 21,637 kg of CO2 emissions annually – that's the equivalent weight of eight and a bit Spellman Care minibuses!

“We are thrilled to unveil our new solar panels,” said Steven Spellman, Director of Ghyll Royd Care Home. “Sustainability is a core value at Ghyll Royd, and we are constantly seeking ways to reduce our environmental impact. These solar panels will not only generate clean energy for our home, but also significantly lower our carbon footprint, creating a greener future for our residents and the planet.”

The installation of the solar panels is part of Ghyll Royd Care Home's ongoing commitment to providing a comfortable and eco-friendly environment for its residents. The use of clean energy will not only benefit the environment but potentially lead to cost savings that can be reinvested into resident care and facilities.

This initiative aligns with Ghyll Royd Care Home's wider ESG plan, which encompasses a comprehensive approach to ESG practices.
